Child Support Awareness Month

The structure of a family can change over time, but the needs of children remain the same. Children do best when they have parents and other family members who remain committed to helping them grow and thrive.

I thank those parents who take the time and effort to be an active, positive presence in their child's life. You encourage growth when you take time to read to them, let them make a meal, help with homework, teach them a sport or let them help in the yard. With each moment, you are unlocking their passions, inspiring ideas and helping them discover their strengths.

During Child Support Awareness Month, I encourage all Californians to look to the future of our state – our children – and work together to create opportunities that ensure their success.

Sincerely,

EDMUND G. BROWN JR.
